

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A control device including a transmitter module mounted with respect to a piece of equipment and a remote receiver device in responsive communication with the transmitter module. The remote receiver device receives at least one control signal transmitted from the transmitter module and transfers the control signal into an electrical action and/or a mechanical action. The control device can include a sleeve removably fastened about a gunstock, wherein the transmitter module is mounted within a pocket formed by the sleeve.